although the essentially of an accomplice of unsupported is always received with great caution, yet an accomplice is unquestionably a competent witness unless he has been previously sentenced for an infamous offense and he is competent alone—that is a prisoner may be convicted on the testimony of an accomplice uncorroborated by that of any other witness, it being the duty of the jury in all cases to consider the evidence and judge of the credit of the witnesses. The court instructs the jury that the credibility of the witnesses is a question exclusively for the jury, and the law is that where a number of witnesses testify directly opposite to each other the jury is not bound to regard the weight of evidence as equally balanced. The jury have the right to determine from the appearance of witnesses on the stand, their manner of testifying and their apparent cander and fairness, their guaranteed to relieve astumn in three minutes and cure in five days. MUST BE CLEARLY PROVEN.

The court instructs the jury that the law presumes the prisoner to be innocent until he is clearly and conclusively proved guilty of the charge contained in the certificate of the justice and in the copy of the indictment on which he is tried beyond all reasonable doubt, and if there is upon the minds of the jury any reasonable doubt of the prisoner's guilt, based upon the evidence in the case, the law makes it their duty to acquit him; that even if there was suspicion or probability of his guilt, however strong such suspicion or probability, it would not be sufficient to convict, nor would it be sufficient if the greater weight or preporderance of evidence supported the charge against the prisoner, nor that upon the doctrine of chances it were more probable that the prisoner is guilt; but to warrant his conviction his guilt must be proved so clearly and conclusively that there is no reasonable theory based upon the evidence in the case upon which he can be innocent. A reasonable doubt is that stato of mind which, after a full comparison and consideration of all the evidence, both of the Commonwealth and the defense, leaves the minds of the jury in that condition that they cannot say that they feel an abiding faith amounting to a moral certainty, from the evidence in the case, that we such doubt, if your conviction of the prisoner's guilt does not amount to moral certainty from the evidence in the case, then the court instructs you that you must sequit the instructs.

Mr. Meredith gave some time to discussing the alleged conspirincy between the three contractors for raiding the city treasury, as he put it. They were an gry because King stood in their way and the indictment and trial was a result of illis and this alone. Mr. Meredith gave considerable attention to the testimony of Gasser, saying there was no trouble to contradict him a number of times. He referred to the testimony in rebuttal of Mesers. Bolton and Tallaferre, concluding that evidently Gasser had no respect even for the dead, referring to the statement he is alleged to have made to the last named about certain corruption in the old Street Committee.
